MONTANA MARVEL

Northwestern Montana's Flathead Valley is about as private as you can get in the Continental U.S., and Kootenai, an elite second home retreat on a private 42-acre site along Swan Lake, plans to keep it that way for discerning home owners looking to recreate an authentic "summer camp" experience with a decidedly luxurious twist. Ten original cabins (including the historic Lindbergh Cabin), a barn and a great lodge have been lovingly restored and an additional 32 new homes are being added. Amenities include 2,400 feet of lake and river frontage, a dedicated nature center and museum, and full outfitting for nearly any outdoor activity you can name. Properties range from $3 to $7 million.

ARTFUL ACCESS

Le Méridien Hotels & Resorts is pushing its luxury message to art and design lovers. The hotel chain's cultural curator, French arts iconoclast Jérôme Sans, has pioneered the UNLOCK ART program: All Le Méridien properties worldwide now offer complimentary access to unique and innovative cultural institutions in their respective locales. For example, at Paris' newly refurbished Le Méridien Etoile—where the Presidential Suite goes for $1,240 per night—it's the Palais de Tokyo. Your hotel key card becomes your access card, as well as a miniature collector's item, having been designed (in limited edition) by LM100 members, a group of international creatives plucked from the fields of art, architecture, cuisine, design and fashion.
